

Preqin Anywhere: Access Preqin Data Wherever You Are

Preqin today launches its new program: Preqin Anywhere. Preqin Anywhere is a commitment from Preqin that its clients should be able to access the alternative assets industry's most powerful data and insights in whatever way best suits them. To that end, Preqin has provided remote-access tools and collaborated with other providers to offer Preqin data directly through other CRM and research platforms, giving Preqin clients seamless access to the insights they need to make decisions with confidence and with greater efficiency.

There are three main elements that take part in this program: APIs, partnerships and a mobile app.

All of Preqin's core data sets on our product, Preqin Pro, can be accessed through our data feeds API. This allows operators to import Preqin data directly into their native systems, rather than collecting data from Preqin Pro and transferring it. The data feeds API makes it easy to combine raw data from Preqin with other internal and external sources. How do experts benefit from it? They are able to access data in real time, manipulate data in their native platforms to power their analytics and reporting, and save time spent acquiring data to focus on more value-add tasks.

Through partnerships, our data is currently available through a range of third-party platforms via pre-built integrations that are ready to use. Our growing partner list includes Backstop, DealCloud, FactSet, S&P Global Market Intelligence, Navatar and Clienteer. The latest addition to our partner line up, S&P Global Market Intelligence, has now made Preqin data across all alternative asset classes available to their clients via their FTP data feeds product, while later developments will make Preqin private equity and venture capital data available via the Market Intelligence desktop platform.

And with the Mobile app, Preqin is offering more ways to access Preqin's data, anywhere, anytime. Containing all the same raw information as Preqin Pro, the Preqin mobile app allows users to get up-to-the-minute information on funds, firms, investors, and contacts. It's the power of Pro in your pocket.

"With Preqin Anywhere, we are providing customers the best-in-class data that they need, combined with cutting-edge tools to let them access it wherever and however they need to," said Ayo Akindele, Global Head of Partnerships at Preqin. "Being able to access Preqin data direct from another platform will give users crucial efficiency and empower their insights by allowing them to combine multiple data sources in one platform. Customers are the central focus of Preqin, and we are always innovating to offer the best solutions to help our clients extract maximum value from our data. Every step we take aims to help them make better-informed decisions."
